Description

Elegant Louis XV period blond walnut Lyon desk-table.

It rests on a curved base topped with carved shells and ending with pretty "crow's feet" topped with acanthus leaves.

The front and back crosspieces are also finely carved with shells and arabesques on a punched background.

The rectangular top receives "ears" at the four corners. It is surrounded by a generous molding and receives a Havana morocco highlighted with a gilded border with small irons.

This writing table opens on the front with a large drawer molded with a corbin's beak.

The nervous flexibility of the base, the balance and dynamism of the lines, the quality of the ornamental sculpture testify to the elegance of the
