Description

Recently serviced, works perfectly. Beautiful Early 19th Century Skeleton Clock, "keyhole Frame" Model. Keyhole shape, these models are illustrated in the book by Derek Roberts: "Continental and American Skeleton Clocks", a reference in the field. Just like ours, these clocks are from the 1830s/1840s and have a number of common points (narrow brass bar as a plate, knife edge suspension, shape of the fork of the escapement etc.) The clock and its globe are in good condition, no lack or accident apart from a few hairlines on the dial. Recently serviced, works perfectly. You have the opportunity to acquire this beautiful early XIXth century timepiece with a very modern line and which can adapt to any style of interior.
