Description

This stunning 1980s clear glass vase is a true work of art from the island of Murano, famous for its exceptional glassmakers. Of particular note is the "Bullicante" technique used for this vase, which creates numerous small air bubbles meticulously integrated into the structure of the glass. These bubbles not only add texture, but also an eye-catching depth to the crystalline transparency of the piece.

The vase is also embellished with an elegant network of milky white glass threads, expertly arranged to form a delicate lattice pattern. This pattern adds an extra dimension, contrasting beautifully with the transparency and purity of the glass and highlighting the craftsmanship of the Murano glassmakers.
