Description

Fine earthenware cachepot from Lunéville, 19th century, decorated with Saxon flowers, all different. "Bone China" period when Lunéville reproduced in fine earthenware the most beautiful porcelain services from the end of the 18th century. Louis XV style cachepot with rocaille-shaped scalloped edges. In the center on the white backgrounds, superb floral bouquets are hand-painted in very shimmering shades. All the bouquets are different and painted with extreme finesse. Good condition, one foot has been restored, see photos.
