Description

Oil on canvas depicting a picking scene, or genre scene, in a rural atmosphere, some characters picking fruit, others holding flowers in their hands. A character balancing on his ladder picks a fruit from a tree and holds a basket, another prepares to pick it up if it holds it out to him or if it falls. In the center of the composition, a lady or an elegant woman and a man hold small bouquets of flowers, which seems to animate the two other characters surrounding them, the man also holding a rake. In the foreground, we can see a wicker basket loaded with flowers. To the left of the composition, we can see a terracotta orange tree tub. In the background, we can see the tower of a castle or a keep, round in shape, as well as a stormy sky. Two trees punctuate the composition. The figures are dressed in typical 18th century
