Description

Louis XVI 18th century secretary in Cuban mahogany and veneer covered with a gray Saint Anne marble from the period highlighted by a groove on its perimeter and raised corners following the shape of the piece of furniture. In the upper part, a belt drawer with two bronze pull handles. In the central part, a flap 76 cm from the open ground, supported by brass compasses which makes it very solid for writing on old Havana-colored leather with gold binding. This flap reveals a very refined interior (theater) with 3 large lockers and 7 mahogany drawers. Finally, two doors in the lower part open onto a large mahogany drawer with a very beautiful clover lock entry framed by brass molding. The front and rear raised uprights are highlighted with a double ebony and brass fillet. The whole of this
