Description

interesting set of six bridge chairs, designed by Didier Gomez, published by Ligne Roset in the French Linéaire series at the end of the 80s. Didier Gomez is the head of an internationally renowned design agency, which has been collaborating with the biggest luxury brands since 1978. He has established strong partnerships with major furniture publishing houses such as Cinna or Ligne Roset. It is within the framework of this collaboration that the latter published in the Contracts series, the seats called French Line, in homage to the great creations made for French ocean liners in the 30s. This series comes from a Parisian café. Good used condition, the patina of the wood needs to be redone, due to intensive use. The seats are excellent, the red alcantara cover in good condition (only one seat has a small
