Description

Fun and decorative armchair called Savonarole, in homage to the sinister preacher of Florence, therefore in the Renaissance style, made in the 19th century, to participate in the fashionable atmospheres in the middle of the century. Particularly carved, the armrests end in cabbages, circled with free and mobile rings, it has a removable backrest, carved with vine leaves, and a central medallion representing Bacchus child giving reason to a goat. Some small repairs of use, but overall in very good condition.
