Description

Very rare part of a Luneville earthenware service, Keller et Guérin factory. Au Gui model designed by Edmond Lachenal (1855-1930). Readers of the magazine "Les Annales politiques et artistiques" were offered an earthenware service by the Keller et Guérin factory for the year 1900 as a thank you for their subscription. Edmond Lachenal was involved in the design. He proposed a mistletoe decoration in pale green and mauve tones obtained using a stencil. The mistletoe service was produced until 1914, when the factory's workshops were burned down by German troops. Several pieces are kept at the Musée d'Orsay. This set is in fairly good house condition. No chips or breakages, but some pieces are stained or yellowed. - 19 flat plates, diameter 26 cm, including 10 yellowed - 6 soup plates, diameter
