Description

Description: Botticino marble carved. This pair of basins is a work of the Grand Tour by reproducing those of large size of the ancient Roman period. Moreover and rarely in pairs, the cups in centerpieces are never thus organized in such a design of basin. The Grand Tour was an authentic cultural journey before the letter and a small industry of objects was born from it. At the time, the spirit of beauty predominated over authenticity hence the objects in reduction allowing to easily bring back a witness of the last discovery of excavations, as well as the spirit of the beauty of Ancient Art. Each basin is placed on a base with curved pyramid coffers. The belly has the base widened in gadroons as for a Medici vase. The edge is encircled with very elegant volutes in ribbons tied in four parts and joining in
