glazes are a real invitation to caress. They are very difficult to find today because of the small production of the artist, nicknamed "Le Song normand": cups and vases, all unique. He will stop pottery in 1964 to devote himself to sculpture. He will exhibit all over the world. He explores bronze, steel, marble, polyester, aluminum and at the end of his career, resin because "it's freedom, I can make any shape, it changes the inspiration." He is a real jack-of-all-trades, a complete artist. Source: https://www.art-angelux.com/michel-beck
