Description

Painting on wood panel, signed lower right.A few pine trees stand on a rocky headland jutting out into the sea. Two small figures enliven the shore, while sailboats are just visible through the mist offshore. The browns and ochres of the foreground soften towards the horizon, where sea and sky merge in a pale light.Louis Proust painted the Breton coast on several occasions, notably Concarneau and its walled old town, the Ville Close. From rocky shores to harbours, his seascapes capture the changing light of the coast, from sunset to moonlight. This panoramic panel is a delicate example of his treatment of coastal light.The painting is presented in a wooden frame with a gilt inner border. An old, partially legible label remains on the back of the frame.Size of the painting 50.5 cm x 30.5 cm. Size of the work 40
