Description

This painting, signed by artist Konstantin Szewczenko, is a magnificent representation of Orientalist art. Made on a wooden panel, this work depicts an elderly man dressed in traditional oriental clothing, holding a rosary in his hands. The mastery of details, from the folds of clothing to the expressive facial features, is a testament to Szewczenko's talent for capturing the soul of his subjects. The subtle use of colors and shadows highlights the dignity and serenity of the character, while the background suggests an oriental setting, with barely sketched silhouettes, creating a contrast between the simplicity of the background and the wealth of the central character. The work is framed in a richly carved and ornate wooden frame, which magnifies the whole and adds a touch of sophistication to this already elegant painting. This painting, with its classic aesthetic and its great finesse, fits perfectly into the tradition of Orientalism, an artistic movement which has fascinated many European artists from the 19th century onwards. In very good condition despite some age-related cracks, this is an exceptional piece for any art lover or collector.
