Description

This large 20th-century painting, done in the 18th-century style, presents a charming and classical scene that recalls the elegance of aristocratic painting of the Ancien Régime. The work depicts a young child dressed in a sumptuous red patterned dress, in a lush garden. Crowned with flowers, the little girl adopts a graceful posture, holding a branch of foliage in one hand, while a colorful parrot stands nearby on a stone plinth. At her feet, a small black and white dog adds a touch of softness to the scene. The background of the painting reveals a French garden landscape, with majestic trees and distant figures moving near a stone bridge, reinforcing the bucolic and refined atmosphere of the work. The richly ornamented gilded frame perfectly frames this composition, reminiscent of the works
