Description

Pair of marble angels - Genoa, 17th century

Splendid pair of white marble angels.

They show typical characteristics of Baroque art, such as a sense of movement and emotional expression.

Cherubic angels are depicted with flowing draperies, soft and rounded shapes, conveying a sense of divine grace and innocence.

Their poses suggest that they may have originally been part of a larger architectural or religious ensemble, perhaps adorning a sculpture or altar.

They have shortcomings, visible in the photos,
