The quality of definition of the creations of this artist highlights two necessary conditions, a mold with very fine chiseling and a perfect cast without any reworking after demolding, therefore "raw cast" like the beautiful productions of the 16th and 17th centuries.

On the works of this artist, any mark other than those indicated above (clear mention ETAIN... crowned rose, etc.) indicates a post-mortem edition. Jules Bateau played with his initials by choosing his countermark, in fact phonetically JB is called Gibet...

Bibliography: "Jules Bateau" by Jean-Christophe Boucaud who reproduces this model there.
