Description

Small oval-shaped tinned copper frying pan from the 18th century. Handle with original wrought iron support. The receptacle has a pouring spout on each side. The interior is well tinned. Small restorations due to use (these objects were often mistreated in the hearths where they were used to collect the fat from the pieces to be roasted on the rotisseries). Very beautiful piece. Length: 41.6 cm, Width: 18 cm, Height: 2.9 cm, Length of the handle: 24.9 cm.
