Angelo Mangiarotti For Up&up, Round Travertine Coffee Table, Central Cylindrical Leg, 1970s

2 850 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Other

Diameter : 116

Height : 25

Description

Round coffee table in travertine (mineral stone) from the 1970s.
A very low model (25cm), the edge of the shelf (116cm) is softened to accentuate its slimness (barely 2cm).
Sober, well-balanced Italian design.
Very good condition.
Angelo Mangiarotti is an Italian architect and industrial designer. "Never forget the real needs of consumers..." Mangiarotti focused on creation in architecture and industrial design. Considered an archistar among the protagonists of the birth of Italian design active in the fifties. Angelo Mangiarotti was born on February 26, 1921 in Milan. In 1948, Angelo Mangiarotti graduated from the School of Architecture and the Polytechnic of Milan. He left for the United

Dealer

Galerie Pignolet
20th century objects and furniture
Mobile : 0032 498 295 815

53 Chaussée de Waterloo
Namur 5000

States in 1953 and worked in Chicago as a professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology where he met Frank Lloyd Wright, Walter Gropius, Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and Konrad Wachsmann, who had a great influence on the evolution of his work. He was very active in urban planning, architecture and industrial design. Mangiarotti received numerous awards in Italy and worked with major publishing houses: Cassina, Poltronova Snaidero... He created Mangiarotti & Associates in Tokyo in 1989.