Description

Beautiful pair of neoclassical mirrors with frames made of larch wood, finely carved and gilded. The frames feature intricate decorations at the top, with a pediment characterized by volutes and floral scrolls. The mirrors, in good condition, are adorned in the center by two engraved figures - a man and a woman - representative of classical themes, complete with garments, ornaments, and symbols representing the allegory of the seasons. These mirrors, of undeniable taste and refinement, can bring class and elegance to any environment. Made by a Neapolitan workshop during the neoclassical period, between the late 18th and early 19th century.
