Description

Hand-painted porcelain plaque, titled "Les Anémones" and signed by the artist Alice Le Perrier, active between the 19th and 20th centuries. This work depicts a bouquet of brightly colored anemones in the foreground, with a bucolic landscape in the background, including a body of water surrounded by vegetation. Alice Le Perrier, a graduate of the Société des Beaux-Arts du Havre, later became a professor at the École des Beaux-Arts de Caen, bringing refined know-how and artistic mastery to her creations. This plaque is a fine example of floral art on porcelain, perfect for lovers of 19th and 20th century decorative art, or for those who appreciate classic botanical representations.
