Description

Large Louis XIII style table in waxed and patinated wood. It rests on four legs ending in large flattened balls, they are connected together by an H-shaped spacer. The whole is entirely turned in a magnificent double torso work. The top is very overhanging and thus allows a large molding to embellish the entire belt. Very beautiful work carried out in the middle of the 20th century in solid ash. Note some small lacks on one of the balls of the base, without any seriousness.
