Description

Impressive 16th century Christ on the cross, a Hispano-Flemish sculpture that has retained a large part of its polychromy and was restored in the 19th century, as well as old restorations on the arms.

A very expressive Christ with a face tilted downwards and in great pain.

The wounds are present on the body and are bleeding.

The perizonium is remarkably well worked.

This Christ is reminiscent of the features of certain Roman Christs.

Magnificent old patina.

An important and imposing Christ with a remarkable and solemn presence.
