Angelo Gaetano Sciolari (1927-1994)

After graduating from the Faculty of Architecture, he returned to his first passion:

cinema and in particular filmmaking. However, after his father's death in 1949, he took over the family business of lighting production. A few years later the company was very successful and exported all over the world.

The Sciolari publisher then became the leading

Italian seller of lighting fixtures in the United States, so much so that his creations were seen in the famous series Dallas. He has also collaborated with big names in design such as Stilnovo, Boulanger and Stilkronen.
