Description

Pastel on cardboard representing a house interior composed of a straw armchair and an old spinning wheel that was found at the end of the 19th and the beginning of the 20th century. The spinning wheel is an old wheel instrument operated by a pedal or a crank, and used for spinning wool, hemp or linen as well as any other fiber. We can admire through the window, the facades of beautiful half-timbered town houses, perhaps Norman. Signature at the bottom right
