Large Persian gallery rug on a red background, set with a pretty border around its edge.
Low wool,Fine antique carpet. Circa 1920.

Roll out the red carpet is an expression that means to welcome warmly. It is a way of making the passage of a guest a real ceremony. Red is the color used to characterize the solemnity of the event.

In its first known incarnation, the red carpet was not intended for ordinary people. A dark red tapestries path was rolled out in ancient Greece, in Aeschylus' play Agamemnon, when Clytemnestra, the king's vengeful wife, prepares to triumphantly welcome her husband from the Trojan War.
