Raoul Adam, born July 22, 1881 in La Châtre, studied in Paris then followed the courses of decorative arts1. He frequented the workshops of Cormon and Gustave Colin and his first paintings have the Creuse valley as their subject1. The Black Valley where he is installed, inspires him in his landscape paintings1. He exhibited in Paris at the Salon of the National Society of Fine Arts from 19122. He resided successively in Éguzon, Châteauroux, Thevet-Saint-Julien and Nohant-Vic. He died on October 12, 1948 in the
