

Rare Tibetan Kangling In Femur And Silver Early 20th Century

1 650 EUR

Period: 20th century

Condition: Très bon état

Material : Bone Length : 32 cm

Description

Rare and superb Kangling in human femur and Tibetan silver decorated with floral and geometric patterns and small colored beads with coral and turquoise.

This beautiful ritual instrument dates from the beginning of the 20th century.

kangling:

The rkang-gling ("femur trumpet") is used in particular to scare away evil spirits.

It can also be used to ward off hail. The bone, supposed to come from a person who died a violent death, is left to dry before being pierced.

The kangling (Tibetan: ?F?5, Wylie: rkang gling), is a wind instrument from the aerophone family which literally translates as "leg" (kang) "flute"

Dealer

Antoine Claeys - Maison du XVème antiquaire généraliste

Mobile: 06 85 53 27 42

24 grande Rue

Nogent l'Artaud 02 310

(ling), the Tibetan name for a trumpet or a horn. This small Tibetan bone trumpet should not be confused with the Tibetan oboe called gyaling or with those of the Mongols.

cf Wikipedia

Dimensions: 32 cm long.

we deliver and ship worldwide, please contact us for a precise quote.