Description

A fine early 19th-century, Regency period four-door breakfront mahogany library bookcase. It features a molded cornice above four astragal glazed doors enclosing adjustable shelves. The lower section has four paneled cupboard doors with mahogany cross banding, all standing on an integral plinth base. This piece is of great quality with a nice warm patina. England, circa 1810. It comes with original keys and working locks. This stunning antique bookcase splits into five sections for easy removal and is in lovely original condition.
