Description

Pair of table lamps, Hollywood Regency style, black lacquer and brass, circa 1970. These lamps, made in the glamour chic style of the 1970s, are reminiscent of the creations of certain designers such as Maison Matthias, Maison Dauphin, Roméo Réga, Maison Jansen, Jean-Claude Mahey among others, although their creator is unknown. Difficult to photograph given their shine and reflection, they are in fair condition, with some traces of wear due to time and use as well as light superficial scratches. A light polishing, easy to do, could enhance them. Sold without lampshades, they fit ideally into a contemporary interior or a decor inspired by mid-20th century design.
