Description

Wall-mounted sink fountain in enamelled cast iron - 19th century

Beautiful and rare old French wall sink fountain enamelled in powder blue.

The fountain in the back is equipped with irons.

The sink has a beautiful shell shape, which collects water from the tap above, and is equipped with feet to stand on.

The water is controlled via the tap by simply turning it and releasing the water, then turning it back to close, the tap is currently blocked.

The water urn can be filled from the top, with a jug, or you can remove the entire part by lifting it off the hooks (if fixed to the wall).

The urn is closed by a nice buttoned lid. The object has some lack of enamel here and there (visible in the photo).

It is a solid and unique piece that will adorn your interior, whether vintage chic or contemporary glamour!

The French manufacturer's brand is imprinted on the back of the base.
