Description

This elegant glass ewer features a finely engraved and enameled decoration of anemone flowers, emblematic of Art Nouveau. The delicate hues and mastery of glasswork are testament to the exceptional know-how of Daum, one of the great French references in the art of glassmaking. The ewer's slender shape, combined with its tapered spout and gracefully curved handle, reflects a refined and functional aesthetic. Signed Daum Nancy, this piece is a precious testimony to the artistic excellence of the late 19th and early 20th centuries.
