Description

While Egyptomania goes hand in hand with Orientalism, innovations in the field of hard porcelain allow all fantasies. This decorative art object, a cup raised on a shaft resting on a terrace, is the perfect example. Witness to the taste for Egypt - while Champollion pierced the secret of hieroglyphics some forty years earlier - it is clear that the myth remains judging by the liberties taken by the porcelain maker! Thus, this decorative piece in very good condition is the memory of a time when the mystery still remained and still fascinated the West.
