Description

This formerly sealed slab (traces of masonry on the back and sides) represents the Virgin and Child on a gridded background, under a pinnacle canopy. We do not know its exact destination. Engraved very deeply, it is comparable to the art of engraved funerary slabs from the Gothic period. Gaps in the upper part, traces of runoff. The severity of the faces and the airy decor place it more towards the beginning of the 15th century or slightly earlier. Weight 7.8 kg.
