Tyrol, XVII Eme Century, Helmeted Warrior Carved In High Relief.

A rather atypical sculpture representing the face of a helmeted man, a warrior in strong relief.

in fact this face seems to want to emerge from its shield with a very particular expression.

probable a work from Tyrol dating from the 17th century, executed in walnut. the nose was restored in the 19th century.

it rests in an openwork frame with stylized floral motifs.

this sculpture has a lot of presence, the man seems to have a strong personality.
a quite surprising warrior sculpture.
