Description

This painted softwood chest from the late 19th century (circa 1880) is a charming example of historical craftsmanship. The piece of furniture has beautiful interior details and offers plenty of storage space, making it both functional and decorative. The chest shows signs of wear consistent with its age, which underlines its authentic character. The lock is there, but does not work because the counterpart is missing. The key is also no longer there. Mass: Depth: 47.5 cm Height: 60cm Width: 98 cm An interesting piece of furniture that fits perfectly into rustic or historical furnishing styles and becomes a unique decorative object thanks to its patina and the charm of the table.
