Description

Elegant table psyche in solid mahogany and mahogany veneer, from the beginning of the 19th century. The frame of the mirror is in flamed mahogany veneer, the upper part is curved. It is held between two cylindrical columns finished at their ends by a beautiful spinning top work. It pivots thanks to two small axes positioned on each side at the top and two small felt pads cleverly glued at the bottom allowing our mirror to remain vertical. The whole rests on four small feet finely thinned at the ends and connected to each other by a turned crotch bar. The back of the mirror is lined with a solid mahogany panel indicating high quality manufacturing.
