Description

Chinese Silk Rug, Beijing, Qing Dynasty, Circa 1930Even after the fall of the Celestial Empire, rugs were woven according to very precise rules, as in this quality product, where five flying dragons with five claws dominate the bottom of this soft knotted silk rug.The golden yellow color is known to be dedicated to the emperor.An identical example of this rug is referenced in Murray L. Eiland's book Chinese and Exotic Rugs, p. 22.Dimensions: 190x125 cmCondition : Good state of preservation, some areas of wool wear, uneven wear to the fringes.*The rug has been professionally washedMY COMPLETE GALLERY
