Description

Etching view of the order and march of the ceremonies observed on the day of the signing of Peace by Louis XV with the English, marking the end of the 7-year war. France having lost the war, it must cede New France (future Canada) and various colonies in Africa and Asia. The colorized view represents the parade that took place at Place Louis XI in Paris after the signing to commemorate the Peace. Etching in good condition (reflection on the photos due to the protective glass), frame with gilded baguettes in used condition. Possibility of sending, carefully packaged, by registered mail with insurance and parcel number for tracking on the internet (shipping costs).
