Description

HONOÉ BOZE born 1830 Mauritius died 1909 in Marseille oil on panel Bedouin horsemen at dusk Grandnephew of the painter Joseph Boze, Honoré Boze was born in Mauritius to a Provençal father and a Hindu mother of great beauty. His father, a ship captain and merchant in Mauritius, who would become Orleanist mayor of Martigues and general councilor of Bouches-du-Rhône, forced to leave Provence, took him to Paris where he was able to visit exhibitions and Salons. He developed a passion for the orientalism of Eugène Fromentin's paintings. He then returned to Provence with his father. He then enrolled as a student at the École des Beaux-Arts in Marseille with Émile Loubon as director and whose classes he followed. He married a widow with properties in Oran. He was then able to travel to Algeria
