Description

Jean Lescure, born in 1934, is a French painter known for his landscapes and maritime scenes. His works, mainly oils on canvas, often depict beaches at low tide, fishing boats and rural scenes. His paintings have been presented in various auctions, testifying to their presence on the art market and reflecting a certain recognition in the artistic community. This painting depicts an abandoned boat, worn by time, resting on a shore with wild grasses. The background shows a calm harbor with boats and a calming sky. Probably at sunrise or sunset, as indicated by the soft shades of pink and blue. LESCURE's style is often appreciated for its attention to detail and its ability to capture the unique atmosphere of the places it paints. This painting with its contemplative atmosphere, illustrates well the
