Description

From the collaboration between the Alsatian car manufacturer Émile Mathis and the Sarreguemines earthenware factory, we have 9 advertising vignettes affixed to plates. This production, which dates from the 1920s and 1930s, a period that marked the return of Alsace-Moselle to France after a long and painful separation (1871-1918), is illustrated by images characteristic of Alsace: headdresses and costumes, half-timbered houses, storks' nests, geese, Strasbourg Cathedral, etc. This identity is reinforced by the choice of artists who contributed to part of this iconography: Dorette Muller and Henri Zislin, two Alsatian artists whose works are still highly sought after today.

The 9 vignettes are affixed mainly to plates of
