Description

Katar with floral decoration - India, 18th century

Silver-damascened steel Length: 45 cm

This katar, a typical weapon of India, is distinguished by its rich silver-damascened floral decoration, some parts of which have been finely re-engraved, demonstrating great craftsmanship.

The carefully decorated handle features an elegant plant motif that reinforces the refined character of this weapon.

The blade, of the "Zirrah bouk" type, is double-edged.

It is marked by a central ridge that rises from the base, highlighted by a small chiseled fleuron,
