Description

Intriguing late 18th century engraving, after a drawing by Jean Michel Moreau (1741-1814) known as Moreau the Younger, and engraved by Antoine Cosme Géraud (1760-1840), representing, according to the ancient writings of Apuleius, a procession in honor of the goddess Isis. Moreau the Younger was one of the most important designers of the late 18th century, appointed director of the Menus Plaisirs, designer of the king's cabinet, having received accommodation at the Louvre, a great privilege. Many engravers, under his direction, were responsible for distributing his drawings. Here it is a work from the revolutionary period, which was used in 1793 to illustrate a work on the history of religions. It should be noted that here, we are selling a print "before the letter", on a full
