Description

This elegant French console table, dating from the early 19th century, is a fine example of walnut craftsmanship combined with timeless functionality. Its clever design allows it to transition effortlessly from a half-moon console to a full circular dining table, making it a highly versatile piece for any interior.

The tabletop features a beautifully crafted geometric marquetry pattern, showcasing the rich tones and intricate grain of walnut. The surface retains its authentic patina, with minor imperfections that reflect its age and add to its historic charm. Supported by tapered legs finished with brass sabots, the table bears subtle neoclassical influences typical of the period.

When closed, it serves as an understated console, ideal for smaller spaces such as entryways or living areas. When fully extended, it becomes a spacious round table suitable for dining or entertaining. The brass hardware and folding mechanism are both functional and a testament to the exceptional craftsmanship of the early 19th century.

This piece seamlessly blends practicality with antique character, making it a standout addition to both traditional and contemporary settings.

Condition: Very good antique condition with minor wear consistent with age, including a small surface stain and light marks that enhance its vintage appeal.
