This solid cherry table rests on four turned baluster legs, with a constriction, they are connected to each other by an H-shaped spacer bar with a rectangular and straight section. The belt opens on the front with a central drawer. The top is made up of several boards joined together by a groove and finished at each end with an end crosspiece. Our table is stable and very robust. Note, an old dark-colored trace inside one of the legs and a crack on another leg without any impact on the solidity. (see the last two photos).
