Description

We present this set of six Louis XIII chairs, in a style that was sold to us for the 18th century and which for us are in fact from the 19th century.

This type of chair was developed in the 17th century under Louis XIII but was produced a lot in the 18th century, especially in the Toulouse region and in the Gers and then in the 19th century. Ours are in an incredible state of preservation because they were probably bought in the 70s/80s/90s from an antique dealer for the 18th century. People had them completely redone and I think I can tell you that the upholstery was excellent, the fabric is also to our nice taste. The price at which we are going to offer them is not even the price that the redoing must have cost.
