

Brooch Mid 19th Century Silver-gilt And Egyptomania Enamels

400 EUR

Signature : Charles TEMPLIER

Period : 19th century

Condition : Parfait état

Material : Vermeil

Width : 3,8cm

Height : 4,5cm

Description

This superb example of Egyptian-themed jewelry from the 19th century is a brooch in silver gilt and enamels.

An oval motif of a head inspired by a sphinx wearing a scarab pendant in blood color on a black background in matte enamel on porcelain in a domed mount in silver gilt enameled champlevé with symbols inspired by Egyptian motifs: snakes, ibis, winged disk.

Egyptomania in the 19th century was initiated by the Napoleonic Egyptian campaign, then followed by the great interest provoked by the gift of the obelisk of Luxor offered by the Viceroy of Egypt Mehmet Ali to Louis-Philippe in 1831 and erected since 1836 on the Place de la Concorde. The jewelry and decorative arts of this period are testimony to this Egyptomania!

Dealer

Le Bel Escargot

petits objets anciens de collection

Mobile : +33 674539242

Orgerus 78910

On the C-shaped hook of the pin, boar's head hallmark and manufacturer's hallmark
C-symbol-T attributed to Charles TEMPLIER
1821-1890.

Excellent condition, very slight wear on the black background of the central plate.
Period 19th century circa 1850.

Dimensions 4.5cm x 3.8cm

Weight 13g