Description

I offer you these interesting pieces of furniture from the middle of the 19th century in beautiful original condition. They are native to the valley of the cher berrichonne. They are entirely made of ash and ash burl. Offered today as sideboards, they were originally used as chests of drawers with doors. This partly explains why they have passed the time without damage. As can be seen in the photos, many small differences exist. These pieces of furniture have a very strong typicality, a similarity of dimensions, a rare essence of ash burl wood; this is what brings them together first. They were undoubtedly made by the same craftsman, surely a few years apart. They have never been restored, they are simply in good original condition.
