Description

Rare and beautiful pair of roof punches from the middle of the 18th century in the ornamental Baroque style in Castelnaudary plume, these pieces which are the basic elements and of a beautiful movement are part of elements in three parts: base, central body and point, fitting together when assembled. Presented on generous turned and molded wooden bases with a patinated pink champis, these two remarkable pieces of "Curiosity" have a real decorative interest and if necessary can serve elegantly as bases to present a pair of objects (vases, statues, etc.). This ancestral and quality craftsmanship was specific to the Castelnaudary factory which benefited from a fine and high quality clay rather clear even going towards ochre for certain decorative pieces, lions, seated dogs, sphinxes etc ...
