Description

A 'poor' chair originally placed in a rustic environment, although embellished by a simple wood carving along the backrest, which enhances it and indicates its era. However, the most notable feature of this chair are the initials VA engraved in several places; in the past, the owner's monogram was engraved on the chair that was placed in the church to sit during religious services. It is nevertheless curious that this monogram appears in various places. The chair is in good condition, and the seat has been recently re-caned.
